* Source : Amundi. The above cover complete periods of 12 months for each calendar year. Past performance is no predictor of current and future results and does not guarantee future yield. Any losses or gains do not take into consideration any costs, commissions and fees incurred by the investor in the issue and buyout of the shares (e.g. taxes, brokerage fees or other commissions deducted by the financial intermediary). If performance is calculated in a currency other than the euro, any losses or gains generated can thereby be affected by exchange rate fluctuations (both upward and downward). The discrepancy accounts for the performance difference between the portfolio and the index.

Management commentary

February marked a consolidation of the US market, with the S&P 500 posting a decline of -0.9% in dollars after its recent highs. This slowdown was caused by inflation that proved more persistent than expected, dampening hopes for a swift Fed rate cut. At the same time, heightened global geopolitical tensions weighed on market sentiment, fueling increased caution regarding the risks of supply chain disruptions. The technology sector experienced notable profit-taking in response to rising bond yields, leading to a rotation towards more defensive stocks. In conclusion, this month illustrates a necessary adjustment phase in a context of monetary recalibration and growing international pressures.
